

Submarine

Submarine

John Holland

Submarines are boats that can travel under the water. An Irish man, John Holland, made one of the first submarines. He made it more than a hundred years ago. The first submarines were used to fight in wars. They sank ships and many people were killed.

These days, submarines are used for lots of jobs. They go deep under the water to find out more about sea animals. They can be used to look for old ships that sank long ago.

A few years ago, a small submarine found the wreck of the Titanic. The Titanic sank on its very first trip. It had been lost for years. ■
